

SASHA PIVOVAROVA

Documents her global escapades through her art.

Your favorite vacations?

Any expedition that takes me around the world in search of exotic places that are untouched by time—places like Hampi or Rishikesh in India; Kyoto, Japan; and Angkor Wat, Cambodia.

Where do you dream of going?

The Himalayas—I want to go to the Bhyundar Valley, which is also known as the Valley of Flowers. You can see flowers of different colors blooming all the way to the horizon.

What's in your carry-on bag?

It usually contains a sketchbook, colored pencils, and rolls of tape, in case I decide to make a collage.

What do you pack?

I'm always inspired by the place I am visiting, and I like to incorporate elements of local dress into my outfit. When I visited Texas, I wore a cowboy hat with a little white Chanel dress. And on a trip to India, I took an evening dress I had made out of an antique sari.

For sentimentality's sake?

My stuffed rabbit Zaechka, who is also my art project. I take her picture everywhere we go. Sometimes she is in more pictures than I am!

What's in your beauty bag?

Aveda shampoo, Prada Tendre perfume, and Embryolisse moisturizer, which I buy in French pharmacies.

How do you exercise?

T'ai chi, and I don't really care what I wear when I do it. Stella McCartney for Adidas works for me.

WORK AND PLAY
Pivovarova has a photo-op moment in the Florida Keys. Foley dress, $319; Foley & Corinna, NYC. LEFT: her self-portrait.

VOGUE
May 2007

HER KIT

A Miu Miu bag to carry art supplies, $1,445.

SUNNY STYLE

Chanel minidress, $2,090. Marc Jacobs flats, $155 a pair.

TRUNK SHOW

She has no trouble spotting her case, RIGHT, on the carousel.

FOR TOURING

Her cowboy hat, Chloe jeans, $520. Linda Farrow Vintage shades, $300.

FULLY BOOKED

Catching up on reading in Thailand, January 2007.

CONSTANT COMPANION

The Prada I.G cell phone, to keep in touch.

REMINDE ME
Souvenirs include, FROM TOP: an antique Moroccan rug; Chinese tea to sip; a traditional Gorodets horse from her native Russia.

